DISCUSSION Sharon called to ask if I'd had a chance to go over their new proposed solution to the 'cracked slabs problem' (i.e. secondary containment pans + permitting the existing building) with Elizabeth. I said I'd told her about it and that neither Elizabeth or I had seen any substantive problems with their plans so far, but that I still wasn't sure exactly how it would fit into the permitting process. I mentioned that if she was reviewing the application for currentness, she might want to check the Part A too, especially for accuracy of the total annual quantities. Sharon asked for a new blank Part A form, and said she'd get me all the revisions + change pages within a month.
