Mr. Zappe:

I do not have a problem with DOE putting PCBs underground at the WIPP plant. I think a half-mile underground, in salt, is an excellent place to dispose of unwanted, toxic waste. This is provided it does not change the safe operation of the plant.

To date, WIPP's safety record has been good. As long as disposing of PCBs does not affect the ability of WIPP to remain safe, and helps clean up the environment, I support the disposing of PCBs at WIPP.

Sincerely,

Robert C. Murray II
